Professional Experience

Ivan joined Architectus in 2007 as an architect and joined the Urban Design and Planning team in 2016. With experience working across master planning, urban design, tertiary education, mixed use, residential, commercial, industrial, student accommodation and retirement living projects he has extensive experience in leading both architecture and urban design teams for a number of major clients.

Since 2011, Ivan has coordinated a Design Studio for the Masters of Architecture program at the University of New South Wales. Initially working alongside Architectus' Managing Director Ray Brown, and more recently with Dr Philip Oldfield, his design studios and teaching continues to explore the potential of mixed use hybrid and commercial office buildings in an urban context.

Ivan is responsible for the day-to-day coordination, communication and management of teams. His thorough leadership style and excellent organizational, analytical and problem solving skills are evident throughout his projects.
